Duties: The Backcountry Trails Camp Supervisor will be based at remote wilderness locations throughout the San Jacinto Mountains and work under the direction of the Inland Center Conservation Supervisor. Through the leadership, direction, counseling, training, and supervision provided by the Backcountry Trails Camp Supervisor, corpsmembers develop character, work ethics, work maturity skills, trail maintenance and construction expertise, environmental awareness, wilderness ethics, cooperative living skills; and complete public service conservation work as a member of a CCC Backcountry Trail Crew. Work will be completed in the San Jacinto Mountains.

Desirable Qualifications: Ability to work independently, with little supervision, and to make critical decisions as needed. Ability to perform physically demanding labor which includes hiking three m.p.h. for up to 18 miles at high elevations and rockwork; Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) 1 or Advanced First Aid certification; CPR; water safety practices; and knowledge of natural history. Willingness to live and work for up to six months in a primitive camp isolated from communities. Willingness to work odd and irregular hours; demonstrated aptitude for, and willingness to teach and work with young people in regard to their personal and social development; willingness to do manual labor, including landscaping, trail construction, and other physically demanding activities; willingness to set an example for young people by attitude, ability, knowledge, attention to detail, leadership, and pride of work.

Special Requirements: Up to two years experience in organizing, instructing, supervising, and evaluating six or more people, ages 16-25 in an organization requiring specific accomplishments or completion of specific tasks. Such experience must include direct responsibility for discipline, direction, and welfare of the persons involved.

Who May Apply: Appointments to this class are made under temporary authority and are limited to no more than nine months of full-time equivalent work. No permanent appointment will be made. All applications will be screened and only the most qualified will be scheduled for interview. Cal Works' recipients will be given hiring priority.
